

► ONLINE SEARCH SYSTEMS

► With the implementation of the DPMApublikationen and DEPATISnet Internet platforms for the German Patent and Trademark Office, Bundesdruckerei has demonstrated its expertise in the online editing of enormous amounts of data at the highest level: More than 30 million documents from the field of industrial property rights can be searched on the DEPATISnet platform! All new publications, modifications to and amendments of industrial property rights in Germany are published regularly in DPMApublikationen on the Internet.

Efficient and precise search

Such enormous amounts of information can only be handled using state-of-the-art electronic publications. The demands which the customer places on search software for handling such data volumes are as follows: security, efficiency and intelligence coupled with convenient searching for the required information. Bundesdruckerei provides three different search modes which permit both newcomers and experienced users alike to quickly and successfully navigate their way through the enormous data quantities.

Platforms like DPMApublikationen or DEPATISnet are opening up new dimensions in publication obligations that go far beyond pure publication: Intelligent tools are opening up access to contents in a useful and valuable way, thus giving additional quality to the content.

In Switzerland, Bundesdruckerei has also implemented the swissreg Internet service of the Swiss Federal Institute of Intellectual Property Rights.

Online and offline:

intelligent, fast publishing without any media discontinuity

The industrial property rights documents that appear every week can be published in a seamless, media-neutral manner on the Internet, on CD-ROM as well as in printed form. Bundesdruckerei boasts unique expertise when it comes to connecting Internet publication platforms to the respective production systems. This means that the customer is always able to select the desired form of publication or to select several forms of publication at the same time.

The BundOnline Star-2004 has been awarded by Interior Minister Otto Schily to the DPMApublikationen Internet platform as the best online service in the „Government to Citizen“ category. ◀
